

FADE IN: INTERIOR: COURTROOM: DOROTHY MOORE
is on the stand. She is a brown-skinned, fairly pleasant-looking woman. She looks sincerely at ASA BRIGGS.

BRIGGS

And what time do you remember Mr. King coming to your home that afternoon?

MOORE

Three thirty.

BRIGGS

And you're sure of the time?

MOORE (confidently)

I am quite sure, sir.

Nothing more.

PETROCELLI

Mrs. Moore, how often does Mr. King come to your house?

MOORE

About twice a month. He's my cousin.

PETROCELLI

Do you remember the purpose of the visit?

MOORE

He was just dropping by. He saw a lamp that he thought I might like and he brought it by. We talked about Christmas coming up.

PETROCELLI

He bought the lamp for you?

MOORE

Yes, he did.

PETROCELLI

Do you remember if he was working at the time? Did he have a job?

MOORE

I don't think so.

PETROCELLI

And still he took his money to buy you a lamp. You remember how much the lamp cost?
