

Nothing further.

O'BRIEN

No questions.

PETROCELLI (as JOSÉ steps down)

The state calls Salvatore Zinzi.

CUT TO: SAL ZINZI on the stand. He is nervous, slightly overweight. He wears thick glasses, which he touches over and over again as he testifies.

PETROCELLI

Mr. Zinzi, where were you when you first became involved with this case?

ZINZI

Riker's Island.

PETROCELLI

Why were you there?

ZINZI

Stolen property. A guy sold me some baseball cards. They were stolen.

PETROCELLI

You knew they were stolen?

ZINZI

Yeah. I guess.

PETROCELLI

While you were at Riker's Island, did you engage in a certain conversation with a Wendell Bolden?

ZINZI

Yes, ma'am.

PETROCELLI

You want to tell me about the conversation?

ZINZI

He said he knew about a drugstore holdup where a guy was killed, and he was thinking of turning the guy in to get a break.
